It has been praised for its stunts and cinematography and criticised for the quality of the dialogue and story line. Dhoom was released on 25 December 2006 to mostly positive reviews from critics but was a box-office success worldwide becoming one of the highest-grossing Bollywood films of all time. The film was later remade in Telugu as Pokiri, in Tamil as Dhoni and in Kannada as D-Dhoom. The film begins with an international bank robbery committed by a thief (Vivek Oberoi). Several million dollars of the money stolen were later recovered on the street by ACP Jai Dixit (Abhishek Bachchan) and his assistant Ali Akbar Fateh Khan (Johnny Lever). During their investigation, Jai had saved the life of undercover CBI officer, Zoya Rehman (Katrina Kaif), while she was investigating her brother's murder. However, after this event Zoya began to believe that Jai was involved with her brother's death. The CBI sent Jai's wife, Trisha (Mallika Sherawat) to interrogate Jai. Later on, Ali informs Jai that underworld leader Shekhar Singh (Ben Kingsley), who is the only person who knows the truth behind the murder of Zoya's brother, is holding a large sum of money at his mansion. At the same time, Shekhar's nephew Dhoom (Akshay Kumar) has been kidnapping people for ransom. Jai learns that Shekhar plans to kill him using an unidentified weapon called "Sapna". Knowing this, he sends Ali to buy some weapon detectors at a local market. However, Ali gets caught by Dhoom and is forced to go with him. During the journey, Ali instigates Dhoom about the whereabouts of Shekhar's money. As a result, Dhoom ditches his partner and steals Shekhar's car. After getting into an accident with Jai and Trisha, Dhoom flees the scene on a bike along with his associate Maya (Sarah-Jane Dias). When Jai realizes that he has lost all his money and also has no weapon detector, he goes to Shekhar's mansion and rescues Trisha after she was shot by Shekhar. He then arrives at a market where he sees Ali being held as a hostage by Dhoom and Maya. Jai tricks them into believing that he is going to shoot them, but instead shoots the weapon detectors as Ali had requested. After the gunfight, Jai goes back to Shekhar's mansion to meet Trisha and once again rescues her from Shekhar. He then heads back to the market where he saves Ali from being killed by Dhoom. Jai and Ali manage to get rid of Dhoom's men, but they are unable to stop him from escaping with all of Shekhar's money in his truck. Jai, Trisha and Ali chase him through the roads of Mumbai.
